

MEXICO FACES ADDED TROUBLE

Claim of $105,180,204.80 Is Presented Against Government by American Bankers.

DISPUTE IS AN OLD ONE

New York, Sept. 7.—News that a claim against the government of Mexico, amounting to $105,180,204.80, is in the hands of an American syndicate, that this claim, originally was British, the famous Manning and Mackintosh claim has been previously admitted to be just by the Mexican government, and has been passed upon by three prominent legal firms in this country, who declare that the claim is valid, and that demand has already been made upon the Mexican government by the syndicate for payment, interested Wall Street to-day and aroused among the financiers who heard this action some discussion as to the next move in the case. A single claim of this size is conceded to be formidable, and Wall Street regarded it as significant that it should be put forward at this time, when Mexico is torn by internal strife.

The Mexican Securities and Construction Company, which has certain annuities to the J. P. Morgan & Co., is understood to be the present holder of the claim.

The Manning and Mackintosh claim was the subject of diplomatic negotiation between the Mexican government and the government of Great Britain in the reign of Queen Victoria, and the British government made a naval demonstration off Vera Cruz in 1862 to support a demand on the Mexican government for its liquidation.

Claim Is Approved.
The claim was then investigated and approved by a special commission. Her- ro Juarez, the president of Mexico, later sent a message to Congress to the effect that he thought the bill that Congress has previously passed were authority for him to pay (including interest) to September 30, 1909, $25,000,000, and with an accrued interest to March 31, 1912, the sum of $105,180,204.80. A firm of American bankers searched for the owners of the claim and it was discovered that Don Enrique G. Mackintosh, the only survivor, lived in a remote place in Mexico. Agents were sent to him and he was brought secretly from Mexico to New York and remained in this city for several months. In the meantime, all the original papers, as certified copies, were obtained from the treasury of Mexico and placed in the hands of the syndicate and three law firms.

Since then payment has been deferred for one reason or another. Although Mexican attorneys have pronounced the claim valid.

Rebels' Brutality Stirs Officials

Terrible reports of brutality, brigandage, famine, sickness, and death have been brought to the attention of the State Department from Nicaragua. These reports are just beginning to get through from noncombatants who have fled from the country and reached cable stations not controlled by the Nicaraguan government's censorship. The United States government has referred these dispatches to the Red Cross Society, which, while it has sent $2,000 into Granada, Nicaragua, alone, will send more as soon as conditions are fully known.

FIGHTING FOR LIFE

Lockjaw Patient Has Lived for Week on Liquid Food.

William Luckett, of Boyds, Md., who is a patient at the Emergency Hospital, suffering from lockjaw, is making a valiant fight for recovery.

Last Monday Luckett was admitted to the hospital. Since that time, every treatment known to medical science has been administered. The serum treatment was first given, this was succeeded on Wednesday morning by the chloroform treatment. Luckett's condition shows no improvement. He is now living on liquid diet, because of the rigid condition of his jaws, making impossible feeding him in any other way.

CAREFUL SEA PILOT REWARDED.

CAPT. HANS RUSER.

Commander of the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, of the North German Lloyd Line, who is piloting that vessel across the Atlantic for the last time. When he arrives in Hamburg, Capt. Ruser will immediately go to the Vulkan shipyard to take charge of the company's new queen of the seas, the Imperator, which, when completed, will be the greatest vessel of its kind afloat. Capt. Ruser is being given command of the great new vessel as a tribute to his excellent service for the company. He has followed the life of the sea for thirty-nine years, being a commander the greater part of that time, and has never been so unfortunate as to have a vessel in his charge in any serious mishap.

FRENCH PAPER TAKES FLING AT AMERICA

Action of University of California in Recommending Emperor for Nobel Prize Basis of Attack.

Paris, Sept. 7.—The Paris Midi, commenting on the University of California having proposed the German Emperor as a candidate for the Nobel peace prize, says:

"This pacifism is not quite serious. Californians see the signs of peace boot and sword, and with a sword and some muskets. For the University of California, the apostle of peace is the Man of Kiel, Tangier, and Agadir; the man of powder dry and sword sharp; the man who increases without necessity by 100,000 fighting men his protective army, and who ceaselessly burdens German taxpayers with the cost of more battleships; who has not allowed a day to pass for twenty years without cracking the whip in our ears."

"The president of the University of California, who takes the responsibility for this colossal buffoonery, is not called Mark Twain, nor is he the professor of class wit and humor. He must be some Teuton immigrant. The Yankee universities are full of these false Americans, recently naturalized, and speaking English with a strong Hamburg accent. They import German science, just as others of their compatriots import beer and sausage. They inculcate the rising American generation with a fierce dislike for the French language and literature. They disfigure the scholastic curriculum. The result of this Germanic immigration and culture is that now the traveling Yankee marks himself off from the traveling Englishman, not only by a nasal twang, but by a marked German air."

"This is noticed in all the European hotels. The American of to-day bears the same relation to the Englishman as the cartoon does in a thoroughbred. He looks upon William II. as a species of Charlemagne, wherein, again, he differs greatly from an Englishman."

MILLIONAIRE MAKES OLD EMPLOYEES HAPPY

New York, Sept. 5.—Alexander Smith Cochran, the millionaire bachelor and yachtsman, has just made a number of old and faithful employees of his carpet works happy by distributing $20,000 among them. Thirty-one hundred employees received sums ranging from $20 to $100 each, the distribution being based on the length of service. The employees of ten years' standing received checks equal to the amount of their respective earnings for six months ending June 30 and those of between five and ten years' standing 5 per cent.

OSTRICH FARM PAYS.

London, Sept. 7.—Nine years ago W. B. Belfield, an Englishman, started an ostrich farm at Nice, which, according to a consular report just issued, has given interesting results. Twenty-three ostriches were imported from Southern California, and that the climate of the south of France has proved excellent for the breeding of the birds is shown in the fact that more than 200 have been hatched, the hatching all being done by artificial incubation.

The report adds: "Ostriches from this farm have been exported to Basle, Milan, Palermo, Havana, St. Antonio, Paris, and London. A big turnover is done by the selling of ostrich feather goods, which are made up by the factory connected with the farm and sent to all parts of the world."

"This factory now employs more than 200 hands, all the employees earning good wages."

SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST WALDO

Inspector Hayes Says He Was Ordered Not to Raid Gambling Dens.

New York, Sept. 7.—Police Commissioner Rhinelanders Waldo, who prevented the securing of evidence against disorderly houses or the raiding of questionable resorts, according to testimony adduced to-day at the trial of Capt. Cornelius G. Hayes, demoted by Waldo and now being tried on charges of neglect of duty.

Waldo, who was in charge of the police when Hayes was an inspector, is still head of the police department of New York City, responsible alone to the Mayor. Hayes in his own defense proved that Waldo had instructed him "not to send his men into disorderly houses" in other words, not to secure evidence or to make raids.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Lawrence Farley, who is prosecuting Hayes, put the captain through a three-hour grilling cross-examination, but failed to shake his testimony. When the case was adjourned by Commissioner McKay, who at all times favored the prosecution, until Tuesday morning it was the general impression that the case would be tried by a jury he would have been acquitted without the jury leaving the room.

Incidentally Attorney Thacher, who is defending Hayes, succeeded in getting into the record the fact that Hayes was reinstated by Waldo, and again demoted, all on September 5. The defense contends that by reinstating Hayes, Waldo automatically quashed the charges pending against the captain.

GROGER ATTACHES BELMONT'S AUTO

Society Leaders Come to Rescue and Furnish Cash for Bond—Action Is Surprising.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 7.—A dozen automobiles, each containing well-known society leaders laden with $500 in currency, whirled up the drive of Marble House to-day in response to telephone calls for aid from Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont.

At Marble House they were met by Mrs. Belmont, holding in her hand a writ of attachment on her automobile, by Sheriff Frank P. King. Mrs. Belmont hastily explained. T. P. Garretson, the society grocer, with whom for several months past she has been co-operating in an effort to cut off servants' graft, had attached her automobile for a $400 grocery bill. The claim was absurd she said, but she must have her automobile for immediate use; she had only a little cash and the banks were closed. Sheriff King would accept $500 bond. Of the several handfuls of money proffered to her, Mrs. Belmont took that of Mrs. Philip A. Clarke, the noted society rider, and handed it to Sheriff King, who then went away.

The writ is returnable September 20 in the district court.

The bill was for cigars, cigarettes, liquors, and groceries, delivered at Marble House. Mrs. Belmont disputes it and challenges Garretson to produce the written orders.

Society is amazed at the action of Garretson, who at Mrs. Belmont's request stopped the practice of giving servants commissions on goods purchased. Mrs. Belmont made public her views on this reform in letters to Garretson.

A Point in Verbalism.

From Judge.
Professor (to class in composition)—Some one in the class recently referred to a woman as of "medium size." Please avoid this expression in referring to a woman; it smacks too much of commercialism.
Freshman—But, professor, she might be "on the market."

Germany's present industrial gait will soon place it in the lead for hustling qualities.

The modern drug store to-day is a veritable department store. Did that ever occur to you?

Years and years ago the druggist confined himself strictly to the preparation of prescriptions and the sale of simple medicines. The apothecary shops of those ancient days bore a much different aspect from those of the twentieth century.
Times have changed, and the druggist and his business have by no means remained stationary.

The first step toward the expansion of trade of the drug store was the appearance of patent medicines. Suddenly these preparations came before the public and grew so in popularity that the development of the drug store. The name "apothecary shop" disappeared. Little by little the druggist added to his stock, until now almost anything under the sun but a tailored suit or a turkish bath may be purchased at his store.

The modern drug store is primarily an establishment for the sale of medicines, but it has so many other functions that the public gradually forgot this fact.
Every drug store now is a postal substation, even though it does not bear that name. Many of the pharmacies are officially designated to conduct the business of a post-office substation, and the others have just about as much to do operate a substation or not, who does not sell stamps and postal cards. The average person firmly believes that the druggist is making a profit on the sale, and that by purchasing the articles of him a favor is being done the pharmacist. The fact of the matter is that the druggist doesn't make a cent.

In addition to being a post-office, the modern pharmacy is a telephone office, and in many cases a telegraph office.
When persons who have no telephone facilities at home desire to use the service the first place which enters their head is the drug store. Calling persons to the telephone is one of the principal duties of some kind-hearted druggist.

The druggist's establishment has likewise become an ice cream parlor and a soft-drink dispensary. Whenever a friend says "Let's get a soda," the first thought which enters one's head is "Where is the nearest drug store?"
The drug store has also become a magazine and newspaper stand. Many of the pharmacists sell the daily papers and nearly all of them have the leading weekly and monthly publications for sale. The druggist of to-day is also a confectioner, and he offers to the public the best grades of candies of all sorts.
The pharmacist is likewise a stationer, and he has on sale various grades of writing paper, envelopes, pens, pencils and erasers.

The druggist is the man to see about the new safety razor or about the purchase of a knife. If you want a pair of crutches, he can furnish you with them. If you need a hair brush or a comb, or a cake of soap, or a stick of chewing gum, go to the druggist.

As a cigar dealer the druggist leads all competitors. Every pharmacy is a cigar store, and the public recognizes the fact.
Large sales of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco are made daily by the druggists.
In short the modern pharmacy is a complete department store. It is also a bureau of information. If a person wants to know something the chances are he will go to his druggist to find out. The drug store is the home of the city directory, and more persons daily peep between the red backs of this ponderous volume gratis than stop up to the counter to purchase a bottle of medicine.

Have mercy on your druggist! If he becomes irritated, smile and turn away.
Remember that the poor man is worked nearly to death. He is an apothecary, a cigar dealer, a confectioner, a stationer, an ice-cream parlor proprietor, a postmaster, a telephone employe, a news-dealer, a magazine merchant, a laundry agent, a newspaper want ad agent, an express agent, a gas office substitution agent, and a thousand and one other things.
